my, my munimula

MuNiMuLa sent me an email this week. I read their about section and I liked what I read:

"MuNiMuLa is a design/manufacturing firm whose designs are the product of a subjective understanding of beauty and need. The amalgam of strict industrial production and handcrafted manipulation regulated by the particulars of materials and function. MuNiMuLa strived to maintain a balance between truth and capriciousness guided by discipline and experience."

I browsed through their product listing and realised that their designs are indeed real manifestations of their philosophy. Nice one.
