Aluminum furniture and objects

I first saw the work of MuNiMula over at Design*Sponge last week... I was impressed with the straight forward yet beautiful creations and decided to check them out a bit further. Turns out MuNiMula is a design and manufacturing firm located in Quincy, Michigan... coincidentally, I spent quite a bit of time during my childhood in the rural countryside not too far from Quincy. Now, quality of their work is reason enough to feature MuNiMula here, but that bit of serendipity just sealed the deal.

The anodized aluminum construction of MuNiMula's line of furnishings make them perfect for indoor/outdoor living - light weight, durable, versatile and practical. The clear anodizing leaves the aluminum with a slightly matte silver finish is often used in the marine and boating industry. There is a caveat for the colored finishes though; prolonged exposure to sunlight can cause the bright colors to fade over time. MuNiMula's upholstered pieces are offered in weatherproof Spinneybeck leather or outdoor canvas by special order.

Very nice outdoor things. I'm recommending the alum. bench to my client to be placed under a rather large cantilevered trellis made of the same material, just larger alum. tubes. Do you agree?
